

Experience amplifiers: Micro-animations with maximum impact

- Yewon Park
Experience Innovation
- Keith Hart
Experience Innovation
- Meg Hesse
Content Development

Pixel & Pitch

Fall 2026

PROBLEM STATEMENT

The customer experience on SAP.com misses opportunities to create moments of meaningful engagement and delight.

- Interactions can feel static and impersonal, creating a one-way experience rather than an engaging digital journey.
- The lack of visual feedback and other dynamic cues can make workflows feel less polished and satisfying.
- The result is an experience that feels more perfunctory than memorable, and limits our ability to strengthen user connection, confidence, and overall perception of the brand.

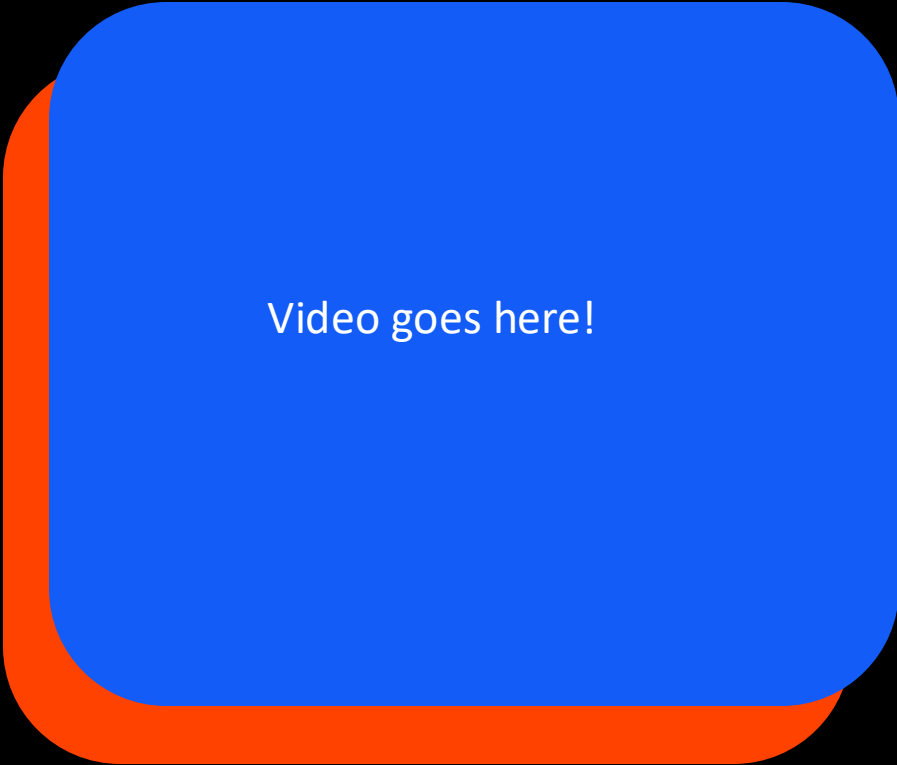

Thoughtful micro-animations act as communication tools that make SAP.com feel more engaging, responsive, and...delightful!

- Immediate visual and audio feedback acknowledges user actions and helps create a smoother, more seamless experience.
- Relevant motion cues can guide attention and behavior without adding complexity.
- Subtle animations reinforce successful interactions and help users navigate through workflows with greater confidence.

Some intro text like “see for yourself” or w/e

Video goes here!

Then there's this dead space here that I don't know what to do with yet. Maybe we just put the link on the next slide and delete this one?

Link to interactive flow goes here

Try the live prototype

WHY IT MATTERS

Effective micro-animations don't just add delight, they help create an experience that's:

easier to understand

simpler to use

more likely to be remembered

Pixel & Pitch

Thank you!

